MAKING MINORITIES IN THE LATE-OTTOMAN PERIOD: ARMENIANS AND KURDS

Janet Klein is the author of The Margins of Empire: Kurdish Militias in the Ottoman Tribal Zone (Stanford University Press, 2011) and numerous other articles and book chapters. Her research is centered on state-society relations as well as nationalism, identity, and gender dynamics from a historical perspective, and her primary geographical area of focus—late-Ottoman Kurdistan—has served as a lens through which she explores wider issues that extend beyond this geography and period.

Co-sponsored by Anthropology, Cultural Studies, Jewish Studies, the Institute for Social Sciences, the Middle East/South Asia Studies Program, Political Science, and the Study of Religion Graduate Program.
